Dief Makes New Maneuver To Meet Leadership Threat

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker has announced his parliamentary followers to a special meeting Friday—the eve of a national party executive session which is expected to develop into a challenge to his leadership of the Progressive Conservative party.

The call to the meeting went out to members of Parliament shortly before a five-hour conference Tuesday between Mr. Diefenbaker and Dalton Camp, national party president, at which the executive meeting Saturday was discussed.

Conservative MPs had originally been called to a caucus Feb. 11-12 to determine opposition strategy for the parliamentary session resuming Feb. 16.

But after that caucus date was set, Mr. Camp selected next Saturday for a special meeting of the national executive. It is expected to discuss the demands of Quebec MPs for a leadership convention.

The Feb. 11-12 caucus will be held as scheduled. But MPs were notified of an additional meeting this Friday, apparently as a bid by Mr. Diefenbaker to go to the national executive meeting armed with a vote of confidence from the parliamentary wing of the party.

Dispute On Wages, Conditions Results In 200 Leaving Jobs

VANCOUVER (CP) — Union pickets were set up around Pacific Great Eastern railway properties in British Columbia early today as 200 trainmen went on strike to back their demands in a contract dispute with the government-owned line.

The trainmen, members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen (B.C.T.), walked off the job at 12:01 a.m., halting service on B.C.'s only north-south railway line.

Some 16 pickets were set up around the PGE's southern terminus in nearby North Vancouver. Others were established at the company's office in downtown Vancouver and stations at Squamish, Lillooet, Williams Lake, Prince George, Chetwynd, Fort St. John and Quesnel.

The trainmen seek improved wages, working and safety conditions.

The last train, a freight, left North Vancouver at 10 p.m. Tuesday night on a 120-mile run to Lillooet.

J. S. Broadbent, PGE general manager, said the union demands ranged as high as 20 per cent and would mean the taxpayers would have to subsidize the Crown company.

A union spokesman said the company "is trying to force us against the wall."

Talks between the union and company representatives ended early Tuesday after the company proposed reduction of yard crews at three terminals.

Agreement had been reached on a five-per-cent increase for 135 road men and a 12-per-cent rate for 50 men.

Wages now range between $450 to $650 monthly for road crew members and $2.55 hourly for yard foremen and $2.51 an hour for yard helpers.

Frederic Bennett told the B.C. Legislature Tuesday night the government would take no action until it had received a report by Dr. Neil Perry, appointed industrial commissioner to investigate the dispute.

"There was a previous agreement by both parties that, until a report was received, no strike action would be taken," the premier had said.

Magistrates' Courts "Racket" Blasted By MLA In Victoria

VICTORIA (CP) — "What goes on in some British Columbia magistrates' courts" constitutes the biggest racket in this country today," the legislature was told Tuesday.

Ernie LeCours, (SC-Delta) said allowing defendants to sit on the bench next to some magistrates courts with out legal counsel is like "loosing Christians to the lions."

Mr. LeCours, a former justice of the peace, called on Attorney General Robert Banner to test the qualifications of magistrates before their appointment.

"I am satisfied that some of our small-town magistrates are completely incompetent. Some sit on the bench not as judges but as little tyrants," he said.

He suggested persons acquitted of charges brought by police should be reimbursed at public expense.

Mr. LeCours also charged that some Vancouver police officers charge "borderline" offenders just in order to collect overtime pay for testifying at their trials.

A charge later rejected by Vancouver's deputy police chief John Fink.

Leo Nimick (NDP — Cranbrook) told the legislature that boys in Brannan Lake School solitary confinement are held in cells "smaller than cages."

He said that small cells have no beds or chairs, and the boys have to sit or stand on a concrete floor until a mattress is thrown in for the night.

"I want to make it clear I'm not criticizing the staff," he said. "They are doing their best under difficult circumstances."

THEY'RE ON MENU FOR HUNGRY SHARK

LONDON (AP)—Members of a British research team plan to offer themselves as bait in a test of shark repellent. They'll tempt the sharks with human blood. "Considerable risk will be attached to this, as no shark repellent has yet proved effective," Ley Kenyon, 58, the expedition's photographer told a press conference Monday. The 11-member skin-diving group leaves for the Red Sea next April to carry out the tests for the British admiralty.

J. V. Choe, chairman, said in Powell River an immediate $30,000,000 expansion of MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. was planned for Powell River. Mr. Choe said the program will include installation of a 100,000-ton-a-year newsprint machine, a kraft pulp mill with a 175,000-ton annual capacity, and a new deep-sea wharf. He said the expansion will mean jobs for about 500 more men.

Claude Wagner, Quebec Attorney-General, announced today the creation of a five-man committee to study problems caused by overcrowding at Montreal's Bordeaux Jail.

Floyd Claims Injured Hand Showed Him Way To Victory

NEW YORK (AP)—Floyd Patterson said today an injured left hand caused him to change his tactics for Monday night's fight with George Chuvalo of Toronto "and that won for me." Patterson suffered his hand injury when he hit the steel swivel of the speed bag while training for his fight with Powell. At that time, Blatt flew to San Juan to treat the injury. Harry Markson, managing director of garden boxing, said he hoped to arrange a rematch at 15 rounds with March 30 as a target date and early May as a second possibility. Patterson said he would make definite future plans within a week or so after talking with Al Bohn, a friend who was the promoter of some of his recent bouts. Chuvalo said he was interested in a rematch but also had proposals for other bouts.

The former world heavyweight boxing champion went directly to the office of Dr. Michael Blatt Monday after the noon weigh-in ceremony. Ultrasonic therapy was administered by Blatt for more than an hour. The treatment was for a bone separation in the back of the hand behind the knuckles.

RE-INJURED HAND "I re-injured the hand about two weeks ago while I was training for this fight," Patterson said. "At that time, I thought about trying to postpone the fight but thought it would look bad for looking in view of the recent postponement of the fight between Sonny Liston and Cassius Clay. I decided to go ahead and fight anyway, but I definitely intend in breeding."

Conservatives Must Make One Decision

Because of the furor regarding Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership of the party, two Conservative meetings have been called. The first is a meeting of the 120-member Conservative national committee called for this weekend and the second is a meeting of the parliamentary caucus called for next week by Mr. Diefenbaker.

At the moment Mr. Diefenbaker can still make his own decision on whether to retire or fight, and if he chooses to fight, it is probable that he will win.

Of the Conservative members it is suggested that probably 80 per cent would like to see Mr. Diefenbaker step down with some dignity. But in the group there are few who would go so far as to vote him out if he did not want to go. The position of the majority is understandable, it is prompted by a combination of fear and loyalty. Many of the Conservative MPs rode to Ottawa on Mr. Diefenbaker's coat-tails and for that they owe him their support. Others are simply not prepared to stand up and be counted as against the old man in a personal confrontation which they feel they could not win.

The executive meeting has been called because of the demand of the Quebec Conservative MPs, led by Mr. Balcer, that a leadership convention should be called. The executive will probably make this decision.

The executive members are in a difficult position. Probably most of the members would like to see a change in leadership, but if Mr. Diefenbaker is unwilling to quit, an attempt to declare the leadership vacant and call a convention would precipitate a battle which, regardless of the outcome, would wreck the party as a national force for years to come. It is unlikely that the majority of the executive will be willing to take this risk.

The only hope of many Conservatives, therefore, is that Mr. Diefenbaker will recognize that he is no longer desired as the party leader and retire before he is subjected to further insults.

So Mr. Diefenbaker will face an executive which is on the horns of a dilemma, an executive divided as to what course to follow. Mr. Diefenbaker can handle such a situation.

Later he will face a party caucus from which his principal opponents have been excluded and others are disarmed, the previous battle in the executive having been lost.

But failure to take action on the party leadership situation will not resolve it; it will not go away. There have been too many open demands by prominent Conservatives that Mr. Diefenbaker must go; there has been too much evidence of the lukewarm loyalty of the other, less out-spoken members of the party, for the uproar to be now solved in privacy.

It has become imperative that the party give a clear expression of its will on this question. Mr. Diefenbaker may still, as he claims, command the loyalty of the overwhelming majority of the party. If this is so, it must be demonstrated beyond question, whatever the consequences in Quebec or elsewhere. Alternatively, the party must face the necessity of appointing a new leader.

The important thing is that the present doubt and controversy surrounding Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership cannot be left unsettled. A meeting of the Conservative national association is surely the only forum where the party can resolve its differences and begin the slow job of restoring its image.

There is a responsibility here which goes beyond immediate party concerns. In any election this year or next, voters will have to consider the possibility of replacing the present government by a Conservative administration. Before making their choice, they have a right to know how the party stands with regard to its leader.

The Conservatives have only two alternatives: either they can give Mr. Diefenbaker a very firm vote of confidence, or they can find a new leader. The choice can be made only by a national convention. The Conservatives owe this to the Canadian people.

Satisfying Choices

As Canada actively turns toward fairer representation in the House of Commons, it is reassuring that leaders of all parties save Mr. Diefenbaker who is disappointed at not having been consulted, have no complaints about the selection of members by the Speaker to serve on the ten commissions that will re-draw constituency boundaries.

By this token there will be general satisfaction that the commissions are indeed completely non-partisan in their makeup, and that the nation will have a redistribution free of political influence and manoeuvring for the first time in its history.

It is doubtful that the new electoral map of the country will be ready in time for the next federal election, despite Prime Minister Pearson's professed intention and hope that this will be the case through protraction of his party's stay in power. And it will be regrettable if the election coming before the task is complete, Canadians have to go to the polls once more with their "voting power" related to the population pattern of 1952, since when there have been vast changes, so that ridings now vary by as much as nearly 160,000 voters.

But the commission could hardly be expected to do such a complicated job in less than the year they have been given; past that time too there must be a period for members of Parliament to make representations for reconsideration of some of the changes, if they wish, and also for reorganization of party structures to fit the new boundaries. And at least Canada is on the way, from which there can hardly be any turning back, to representation by population within fair and practical limits.

Here in British Columbia, noting nothing to indicate similar intention on the part of the provincial government, one can only wonder how much longer in the face of this example the administration can cling to a static map of a dynamic society.—Victoria Times

No Well-Worn Route This, From Germany To Moscow

John Best, Canadian Press correspondent in Moscow, and his wife Joan made a 2,250-mile motor trip from West Germany to the Soviet capital in 10 days. The difficult mid-winter trip is described in this story.

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—From Stuttgart, West Germany, to Moscow is a distance of 2,250 miles travelling by way of Austria, Czechoslovakia and the Soviet Union. It's not what you'd call a well-worn tourist trail.

The route has opened up a bit in recent years for motoring travellers but they generally stick to the warm-weather months. Winter is a different story.

"You'll be setting a record," a German friend told me before we left Stuttgart. "Nobody has ever gone in by this route so late in the season."

Certainly few Westerners have motored through the Carpathian Mountains of eastern Czechoslovakia and the western Ukraine at this time of year, and for good reason.

The Carpathians aren't high as mountains go, but they compound the complications posed by hairpin turns and precipitous inclines.

On two successive nights, because of driving snowstorms in the mountains, we didn't reach our stopover point until midnight—actually 2 a.m. in one case because of two-hour time differential over the span of 250 miles from Košice in Czechoslovakia to Lvov in the Ukraine.

DAYS ARE SHORT

Night comes early in those regions in winter. By mid-afternoon daylight begins to fade and by 6 p.m. it's dark. In the morning, darkness lingers until 9 a.m.

Traffic in the mountains was negligible. One night we travelled more than an hour without seeing another vehicle.

We made the journey in 10 days, counting one-day stops in Vienna, Lvov, Kiev and Kharkov. From Uzhgorod, just inside the Soviet-Czech border, to Kharkov, where we ceased going eastward and wheeled north to Moscow, is a distance of just under 800 miles.

And yet, to give some idea of the immensity of this land, that's only about one-fifth of the distance from Uzhgorod to the Kamchatka Peninsula on the Soviet Union's Pacific shore.

The route to Moscow is studied with place names that recall the titanic struggles of the Second World War—Kiev, Kharkov, Kursk, Orel, Tula. Here and there, in the fields just off the highway, abandoned command bunkers can still be seen.

SOME BORDERS GUARDED

The trip leaves one with a kaleidoscope of impressions. There is Stuttgart, bustling and prosperous, one of the industrial capitals of booming West Germany and headquarters of the Mercedes-Benz auto empire.

There is Vienna, as gay and carefree as it's supposed to be, stores bulging with goods, wide, majestic boulevards and neon-spangled shopping streets.

Entering and leaving Austria is informal, they don't even stamp your passport. In Czechoslovakia there are armed guards, rigid and time-consuming formalities—customs, immigration, currency.

A sentry tower stands on the Czech side of the border with Austria and there is a foot-patrol of two armed men and a dog on the lookout for persons trying to flee the country.

The Soviet border is different again. Accommodations officials are apologetic about the formidable red tape, constantly assuring us that much of the questionnaire routine is strictly "formality."

Driving on Soviet roads is hazardous, especially at night. Vehicles with no tail-lights, drivers who don't bother to signal, poor route directions through towns, people in dark clothing all over the highway, unlighted buggies are just a few of the things you have to contend with.

Dear Dr. Molner: I take medicine for high blood pressure. But I have so much dizziness, and have had a couple of falls. I am 70. What can I do about this dizziness?—MRS. G.C.

Some of the medications for reducing blood pressure can cause dizziness, especially if the pressure is reduced too much. Many older people actually need a pressure higher than "normal" to meet their physiological needs, and to be comfortable. A regulation of your daily dosage may correct the annoyance of these dizzy spells. There may also be other causes for your dizziness. You should mention this symptom to your doctor.

Dear Dr. Molner: For the last few weeks I have been awakened around three o'clock in the morning with a bad case of indigestion and heartburn. I try to avoid rich foods and sweets. I eat dinner before six o'clock and go to bed at a reasonable time. I have small hernia but it has never bothered me.

What foods could I eat and what time should I eat dinner to avoid this?—MRS. J.C.W.

This discomfort in the wee hours of the morning could mean several things among them a peptic ulcer (acting up when the stomach is empty or nearly so), or a hiatal hernia, which can give almost identical symptoms, but may occur more often when you are lying down.

Before trying anything further in the way of diet, you should have X-rays of the stomach and gall bladder to find out just what is causing your distress.

Meat is eaten in special occasions when a sheep or lamb is slaughtered, an average of once a month. Chicken is eaten more often.

VICTORIA MERRY-GO-ROUND

What Hides Up Bennett's Sleeve?

By JAMES K. NESBITT

Victoria—What's up Premier Bennett's sleeve about the yet unborn Bank of British Columbia is not yet clear. The premier is keeping his secret. He delights in keeping everyone guessing. Nothing has leaked out, though the Social Credit backbenchers must know, or do they? There is always rumor about that the premier tells his backbenchers no more than he tells the opposition. This I do not believe.

Some of the NDP oppositionists feel that the premier allowed the Senate's banking committee to sell him and his bank down the river. Mr. Strachan is as anxious for the bank as is the premier himself.

As a citizen, I grow boiling mad when I contemplate this bank business. Here's something the majority of the duly elected representatives of the people of British Columbia want and yet they are stymied by a group of senators who are not elected, who have no responsibility to the people, a group of men appointed for life, for political reasons, at $15,000 a year. This is nothing short of disgraceful. I am sure to a scandal. It's the very opposite of democracy. What we Canadians will put up with constantly astonishes me.

The white rabbit up the premier's sleeve may be revealed when Mr. Bennett delivers his budget address Feb. 5, or he may wait until he brings the new bank bill into the House. Whatever it is, it's bound to be clever, and to cause some uproar. The New Democrats may like it, but the Liberals are almost certain to be agitated.

So far, the 1965 session has not been too lively, but an explosion can come at any moment. There have been a few shouting matches and some name-calling, but not much. The premier feels quite content—among some people read it—sure that most people in British Columbia support him. Oppositionists are sure—or say they are—that if there were an election tomorrow the premier and his government would be thrown out by an enraged public which is very much doubt. As far as I can see the premier's sitting pretty. He has been with us so long, at 22-year-olds, for instance, cannot remember any other premier.

One after the other the members get up and read their pieces in what's called the throne speech debate. They tell of the needs of their constituents. Social Crediters praise the government and oppositionists roast it, and politics creeps in everywhere. It was ever thus.

Liberal leader Ray Perrault called the Premier's right-hand man, Elmer Gundersen, a grey eminence behind the Social Credit throne. Opposition Leader Strachan called Social Credit Waldo Scullings of Victoria a "shovel-mouth" whatever that is and there have been other such compliments and insults. Gundersen died about 1950 and once again SC Cyril Sheford of Omicame caused some merriment as he spoke out in his cowboy drawl.

He has an accent that's entirely unique. You'd know his voice anywhere. It is something to do with the wide rangelands of the north or so I'm told.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

EAGLES SIGHTED

Sir: In one of the recent papers someone was wondering if his eyes were really seeing a bald eagle or not. Yes, they were. The bald eagles have been in this area for many years. When I was a girl waiting for the school bus in the morning we would often see a pair along the Bear Creek road.

Now I am married and living at Trepanier, there are bald eagles along here too. Last winter there was a pair of them, but so far this year we have seen only one. A year ago there was an osprey also. Sometimes on a clear day in the summer if we happened to look skyward there would be I think five birds soaring in the wind. Such a sight in behold! We never see more than two birds at a time along here trying for coots though.

Sometimes we feel sorry for the coots or mud hens but God the Creator put the eagles on this earth for a reason. So let's enjoy watching them and quit feeling sorry for the coots they live on. I believe they eat the dead deer that have been hit on the highway and then thrown over the bank. Eagles are so interesting. Sometimes if they are perched in a big tree along the lake, the crows and smaller birds will peck them no end. They'll land in the same tree and fly around it for a long time.

We have seen them catch coots. They will separate one from the whole bunch and swoop down on it every few seconds. The coot will dive for about seven or eight minutes but then it is so tired that the eagle will swoop down and grab it and have a fresh meal up the creek somewhere.

I hope this letter will answer the man who thought he saw an eagle that he really did.

MISS JOHN MILLRAY

EXAMPLE PLEASED

Sir: I read in the Daily Courier of Jan. 27 that the chamber of commerce project is to be:

1. Opening of liquor outlets on election day.

2. A self-service liquor store. Is this the best project they could think of for Kelowna?

Maybe if these prominent citizens had taken more interest in demanding a better hospital we would have had it before this. It is certainly needed and has been for a long time. Ours is nothing to brag about in a city like Kelowna.

Another worthy and much needed project is a home for the aged and chronically ill. There is so much bragging about this being such a wealthy province and still no home for the pioneers who helped to make it.

fences and 11,954 went to jail. Education costs in B.C. for a year total $144.5 million. Report shows 100 per cent increase in impaired driving in our city.

Does this look as if a body of responsible citizens (whom I believe get a substantial grant from taxpayers' money) need to have as their project, helping to push the sale of intoxicating liquor in our town?

TV programs, afternoon and evening show too many "swigs" from the bottle too.

What our young people need is a good example set by older people.

VIOLET BLACKLACK

JOE'S THANKS

Sir: To Jan. 8, a total of $4,823.10 was raised by the Kelowna Christmas Seal campaign. To the same period last year we had raised $4,823.10.

I would like to thank our contributors and all who helped the campaign.

To an inestimable degree the generous co-operation of the Daily Courier was responsible for the success of the 1964-65 Christmas seal campaign. Your handling of news releases and stories was invaluable in sustaining public interest in the work of the B.C. TB-Christmas Seal Society and its efforts to control tuberculosis, the disease which kills more people in North America than all other infectious diseases combined.

On behalf of the Christmas Seal Society and the Dr. W. J. Knox Chapter, IOIE I wish to thank you and the staff of the Daily Courier for your support in focusing public attention on our work to raise money for this cause.

Sincerely,
ELSIE (MRS. P. G.) RUSSELL
Chairman.

Carrier Pigeons Still in Use

VIENNA (Reuters)—Even in the age of telephone and radio communications, carrier pigeons still serve the public in the mountains of Austria's Tyrol province.

Tyrol's Alpine rescue squads, and some hut-wardens, still use them as their favorite, and often almost only, means of communication.

The Tyrolese argue that pigeons are much easier to carry than heavy radio gadgets, as well as cheaper than the installation of telephone lines.

Radio communication is not always possible in the Alps because their waves are multiply disturbed by the high mountains. But the pigeons find their way through even the most rugged areas.

On 18 months spent $178,000, 000 was spent on liquor in B.C., an average of $28 per month for a family of four. There were 31, 790 prosecutions for liquor of

JAN RUBES AS PRINCE ORLOFSKY IN "DIE FLEDERMAUS"

The Kelowna Rotary Club is bringing another treat to the city. The Canadian Opera Company will perform the light opera "Die Fledermaus—The Bat" at the Kelowna Community Theatre on Monday, February 8. Noted Canadian operatic talent will appear in the production including Jan Rubes already well known to Valley audiences who will portray Prince Orlofsky, and Constance Fisher, Alexander Gray, Podi Protero, John Arab, Phil Stars, Sheila Percy, and Peter Van Ginkel. The glorious melodies of "Die Fledermaus" are by the Austrian composer Johann Strauss, and the company will sing the English translation of the Opera under the musical direction of James Craig. The sets and costumes were designed by William Lord, and Herman Geiger-Torl is the general director of the company. If you enjoy music don't miss this enchanting evening. Tickets are available at Dyck's Drugs or from any Rotarian.

Junior Hospital Auxiliary Plan "Evening in Paris"

Le Cafe de Paris will be the setting for a stimulating "Evening in Paris" sponsored by the Kelowna Junior Hospital Auxiliary. The event will be held at the Le Cafe de Paris on Friday, February 12, 9:30 p.m. at the Aquatic. The evening will include dancing, floor show and a late evening buffet supper. Once again a number of members of the Junior Hospital Auxiliary have joined forces under the very able direction of Mrs. Harold Pettman and Mrs. Jean Viscot to provide the guests with a delightful jump through Paris history. Those participating in the floor show are: Mrs. Vera Trent, Mrs.

William Bennett, Mrs. Desmond Morrow, Mrs. Janet Wilkinson, Mrs. Harold Pettman, Mrs. Paul Currel, Mrs. George Holland, Mrs. John Percival and Mrs. Edward Lawrence.

Bruce Manning will be the Master of Ceremonies. Mrs. Russ Lander will put everyone in a very Parisian mood with her "C'est si Bon" voice. To put the icing on the cake some of the good Doctors of our fair city have something hilarious in store for everyone.

Convenor for this year's ball is Mrs. Cecil Spelman, Convenor, Mrs. Calvin Bardal, decorations, Mrs. Paul Currel and Mrs. Desmond Morrow, favors, Mrs. Harold Birch Jones, buffet supper, Mrs. George Holland, and publicity, Mrs. Edward Lawrence.

Proceeds from the Ball will go towards providing the Kelowna General Hospital with much needed equipment.

ANN LANDERS

Lively Sense Of Humor May Be Called For

Dear Ann Landers: How can I save my 4-year-old brother from making a damn fool out of himself?

Artie never married. He has been like a second father to our children. They love to have him around, and so do we. He is a great wit, generous, and a great enough for me. This one is too human being. The problem is about that one who lives in the this Artie has been bald for as long as I can remember. Well, last night he came over and we almost fell dead. Artie took off his hat and proudly displayed a head of golden curls.

The hairpiece looks surprisingly genuine, but it's just not our Artie. I'm afraid he'll be the laughing stock of the town if he insists on wearing that thing.

In this second childhood or what? He said he feels like a college kid again. We need an outsider to advise us. Should we tell him to put the hair piece in mothballs? —D. C.

Dear D. C.: It's Artie's head and if he wants to put a rug on it, why should it bother you? It's how he feels that counts, and apparently he feels pretty good.

A baldy who suddenly shows up with golden curls had better have a lively sense of humor, and if Artie has one he'll do just fine.

Dear Ann Landers: We in this newspaper office understand and accept all but one of the Ten Commandments for separated parents.

How can a parent avoid exposing the children to a member of the opposite sex with whom he may have become emotionally involved?

Take this hypothetical situation: Here is a legally divorced mother, living with her children. Does she accept no dates? Or, if she accepts dates, does she make arrangements to meet her male friends in the corner bar because she is afraid of exposing her children to them?

If she succeeds in keeping all male friends hidden from her children, what happens when she decides to marry? Does she suddenly bring the man home one night and say, "Here is your new stepfather"? Be reasonable, Ann, please.

—NO NAME

Dear No Name: There is a vast difference between being separated and divorced. A divorced person, of course, is free to enjoy a social life which includes dates, if he or she wants them.

A separated person, however, is in quite a different position. He (or she) is still married, and married people should not become "emotionally involved."

No nagging backache!

We need to be bothered by backache and tired feeling. When he heard that irritation of the bladder and urinary tract can result in backache and tired feeling, he took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. He was able to eliminate the irritants in his system, and the condition causing the backache and tired feeling was his better. —quoted letter. If you are bothered by backache, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills may help you, too. You can depend on them.

I've told her how I feel but she says I'm too young to know my own mind. What burns me up is that she doesn't even ask me first. She makes the date and I have to go, even if it means breaking a date I've already accepted. Is this right or wrong? —LIKE FOR SALE

Dear Like: A pushy mother often spoils the chances of a very nice guy by examining him down a daughter's throat.

I hope your Mom sees this and realizes she is being unfair to you and to the fellow she's trying to promote. You're deciding that they are creeps even before you see them—and no one can win against such odds.

MANITOBA HOSPITAL NOTCHES A FIRST

Pre-Birth Blood Saves Baby Twin

ST. BONIFACE, Man. (CP)—A medical team at St. Boniface Hospital has saved the life of a twin with a pre-birth blood transfusion. It was reported today.

Dr. David Grewar, the pediatrician involved in the case, said it was the first time to his knowledge that the technique had been successful with twins. The twins—a boy and a girl—were born last Nov. 13 to Mrs. A. J. Brucette of St. Boniface.

Blood samples taken from the mother's womb showed that the boy was certain to be dead at birth because of lack of red blood cells.

The mother had Rh-negative blood, the father Rh-positive and the boy's blood type was the same as the father.

PRODUCES ANTIBODY

Because of the difference in blood types between mother and baby, the mother's blood produced an antibody that was harmless to herself, but destroyed the red corpuscles in the baby's blood stream.

The solution was to change the baby's blood to that of the mother with transfusions accomplished by the insertion of a long needle through the mother's abdominal wall.

This method, pioneered in Canada only last year by a Winnipeg medical team, had only been successful on single births.

Two separate transfusions were carried out on the male baby before birth. Both were finally delivered by Caesarian section when labor difficulties developed.

The boy, named Paul, was pink and active with the donated blood. His sister, Paula, affected to a lesser extent by the Rh antibody, was quite pale.

After birth the blood of both children was changed completely to ensure survival. Both are developing nicely today.

The Red Cross here disclosed

the case. Pre-birth blood changing is a comparatively recent medical development. The technique was developed to a large degree in New Zealand before it was used in North America.

PAPER'S BIRTHDAY

FORT SMITH, N.W.T. (CP)—The Northern, first daily paper published in the Northwest Territories, took note of its first anniversary in January by reporting it had missed only one edition by misadventure during the year. That was when the editors were swept down the Slave River while practicing for the N.W.T. championship canoe race.

First Mailwoman Turns Heads

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP)—Despite ice and snow and rain, the mail went through to northwest Spokane last week, but heads turned when the mail carrier strolled by in a skirt and leotards.

At five-foot, three-inch, Mrs. Diana Reisdorph—the city's first mailwoman—is not much bigger than the sack of mail she totes around her route on her left arm.

"I just love this job," she said, "and although I'm on trial now, I'm sure now I can do it."

"My muscles haven't ached so far and my feet feel fine," she added.

Things did go quite well for Mrs. Reisdorph, a 34-year-old divorcee, during her first training week known as "stoozing," because a veteran mailman went around with her to guard against any serious errors.

While postal officials are trying to design an appropriate uniform, Mrs. Reisdorph is wearing a skirt, leotards, jacket, fur-trimmed boots and, of course, a postman's hat.

Some Progress Hoped For On Ottawa Railroad Plans

OTTAWA (CP)—The government hopes to make some progress on its controversial railway legislation during the parliamentary session that resumes Feb. 16.

If an agreement can be reached with the opposition parties, the bill will be sent quickly to the railway committee, which will begin hearing the views of interested groups.

Informants stress there is no thought of having the bill approved in the present session. The idea is merely to get some of the committee work done and thus save time in the new session when the bill is reintroduced.

The plan being pushed by the government is to have a cabinet minister initiate a motion that the subject matter of the bill be referred to committee without second reading. This, in effect, kills the bill's chances of passing and if moved by an opposition member would constitute a motion of non-confidence. But it would not involve confidence in the government if the motion came from the cabinet bench.

It would take a prior agreement among the parties to get approval for such an unusual move. This agreement now is being sought in behind-the-scenes negotiations.

The railway bill, based on the three-year-old report of the MacPherson royal commission, was introduced by Transport Minister Pickersgill last September. It received routine first reading but was then shunted aside by the pressure of other business.

Under its provisions, the railways would be allowed to strip away a mass of money-losing lines and services and be freed of all but the most elementary rate control. To ease the impact of line abandonment, a sliding subsidy starting at nearly $100,000,000 a year would compensate the railways for money-losing operations. The subsidy would drop as these lines and services were peeled away.

In effect, the bill proposes a drastic overhaul of railway regulations that would allow the railways to operate as ordinary businesses in a sink-or-swim competitive battle with other forms of transport.

The bill proposed by the Liberal government implements most of the major recommendations of the royal commission report and is almost identical to one drawn up by the former Conservative government, which fell before the legislation was presented to Parliament.

There is vigorous opposition to some parts of the bill from Western interests, truckers, railway unions and other groups. It is expected that weeks of committee hearings will be required to hear all their arguments.

Indonesians 'Build A-Bomb'

JAKARTA (AP)—The director of Indonesia's army arsenal said today about 300 scientists are working to make the country's first atomic bomb. He promised a "surprise" at the armed forces day celebration in October.

The officer, Brig-Gen. Hartono, also said Indonesia this year will produce guided missiles "whose damaging abilities are superior to those of other countries." His statements were distributed without elaboration by the official Antara news agency.

Hartono said last November that Indonesia would explode an atomic bomb in 1965 and that it had begun surveying the possibility of producing intercontinental ballistic missiles. His statements last year came shortly after a reported successful launching of Indonesian-made rockets for artillery and infantry use.

PETER'S PATER

with PETER MUNOZ

Of course every job, profession or sport has its inventions or innovations and hockey is no exception. During its life cycle many changes, improvements, and there are many who would argue disagreements, have taken place. Undoubtedly many more will come in future.

One such development was the evolution of the face-off as we know it today. Ever wonder how the procedure emanated or have you taken for granted the puck was always faced in pretty much the same fashion? Such was not the case.

A referee back around the turn of the century is credited with instituting the modern day version. Known as the "Grand Old Deal" of hockey referees, one could say Fred Wagborne "invented" the procedure almost out of necessity. He says it was in self defence and to speed up the game.

Back in the early days the face-off was a complicated affair. The ref would place the puck on the ice, then he'd grasp the blades of the centreman's sticks and tuck them against the disc. Next, according to the rules, he'd skate back a couple of strides and yell the order: "Play!"

Naturally things didn't always work out under that system. Often before the referee had a chance to move out of range, one of the opposing centreman would jump the gun, maybe wiggle his stick a bit. His opponent then would try to beat him to the draw. Both would start to slash and swipe at the puck and before the poor official could move away he'd get banged by a stick on the shin or foot. Also, every time the centreman started chopping away before the official gave the signal, the puck would have to be re-faced. This held up play so often it got to be monotonous.

One night, Wagborne, fed up with repeated illegal face-offs and battered legs and feet, blew his top, and "to heck with the rules in this case," hence a new version was born. He told the rival centres to place their stick blades on the ice about a foot or so apart and he would stand back and toss the puck between their sticks. After the puck hit the ice he said they could do as they "damned well pleased."

Apparently it went over because here we are today with a modified version of the same procedure. As late as this season some adjustment has been made to the face-off rule. Body contact between those taking the face-off has been outlawed until the art is complete.

The face-off wasn't the only thing Wagborne changed in the game. One, no longer in effect, was the use of handbells by officials in place of whistles. Back when games were played in unheated rinks and particularly on cold nights the whistles would freeze up and take the skin off referees' lips.

He hit upon the idea of substituting the handbell for the whistle after noticing a waitress using one to signal supper-time in a hotel dining room. He borrowed her bell, took it to the rink, told the teams about his idea and tried it out. It worked fine, no more skinned lips nor plugged whistles when a quick signal was needed in a tense situation.

Bells continued in vogue for many years but along came artificial ice and heated rinks and this brought back the whistles.

Overtime Sawoff Enables Canucks To Gain On Totems

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver Canucks and Los Angeles Blades battled to a 3-3 overtime deadlock in a Western Hockey League game played before 2,979 fans here Tuesday night. The tie moved Canucks to within two points of second place Seattle Totems and Los Angeles out of the league cellar—one point ahead of San Francisco Seals.

Bob McCusker, Bev Bell and Bill McNeill led the Canucks while Marc Boileau, with two goals, and Warren Hynes with one, scored for Los Angeles.

McCusker opened the scoring for Vancouver, converting a beautiful three-way passing play from Bob Kabel and Dave Duke at the 16:46 mark of the first period.

Bell then made it 2-0 for Vancouver at 12:23 of the second before Hynes put Los Angeles on the scoreboard less than four minutes later.

Boileau quickly put Los Angeles in front with two goals, the first coming on a goal-mouth scramble, and his second on a hard shot from 15 feet out. However, McNeill scored his 22nd goal of the season with four minutes remaining to send the game into overtime.

REMEMBER WHEN . . .

Henry, Pulford Play Opposite Starring Roles On Power Play

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Camille Henry and Bobby Pulford have become two of the most dangerous men in the National Hockey League when a power-play situation exists, but for entirely opposite reasons.

Henry has been the trigger-man on New York Rangers' explosive power play, firing 13 of his 21 goals when the Blueshirts owned a man advantage. His success has given the Rangers the league lead in power-play goals with 38.

Pulford has been one of the most effective penalty-killers this season although his Toronto Maple Leafs have given up the second highest total of power-play goals. But as an individual, Pulford has scored four times while his own club was short-handed.

The six teams have been so successful at scoring power-play goals, and short-handed goals, that records in both departments are being threatened.

RECORDS SET

To date, 186 goals have been scored on power plays and 37 by penalty-killers. The record for power-play goals was set at 273 in 1958-59 and the milestone for short-handed goals was established at 43 in the same season.

Five goals behind New York are Detroit Red Wings with 33 power-play goals, nine of them by all-time leader Gordie Howe. Following in order are the Maple Leafs with 32, Montreal Canadiens 31, Chicago 30, Black Hawks 28 and Boston Bruins 17.

Tough-killing squad and have only given up 21 goals when short-handed. The Rangers are next best with 28, both Chicago and Detroit have 29, the Leafs have allowed 36 and the Bruins 37.

Pulford's four short-handed goals have given him a total of 23 in his career, the highest number in NHL recorded history. Jerry Toppazzini, formerly of Boston, was the former leader with 19.

HENRY NEARS 250

Henry's success on the power play has carried him to within two goals of joining the NHL's 250-goal club. Of his 248 goals, 115 have been recorded while the Rangers enjoyed a man-power advantage.

Howe's nine power goals this season have given him the all-time lead with 148. Retired Maurice Richard had 140, and Jean Beliveau has 124.

Third behind Henry and Howe this season is Bobby Hull, who has netted eight goals by Chicago's power play.

MORE HONORS

Don Schollander, 18, who won four gold medals in swimming events at the Tokyo Olympics, was named winner of the 1964 Sullivan award today. A panel of 759 sportsmen, sportswriters, sportscasters and Olympic athletes participated in the annual poll conducted by the AAU.

NHL's Expansion Still Guessing Game

NEW YORK (CP)—The National Hockey League is ready to discuss preliminary plans for expansion—but not in the direction of Russia.

Owners of the six NHL clubs decided at their annual meeting Tuesday to hold a special meeting next month to talk about possible expansion but they laid down terms that are likely to bar competition against overseas teams for some time to come.

NHL president Clarence Campbell emphasized that the league has no immediate plans to enlarge its North American membership either, although Los Angeles and San Francisco are prominent among cities seeking franchises. The six-team membership hasn't changed in 22 years. At the meeting next month, Campbell said, the league will establish a firm policy and then be ready with a plan when the time to expand does come.

It was understood that the NHL is seeking a United States television contract and that the networks are demanding expansion as the price for a TV package.

Campbell said the date and site of the special meeting have not been set but that expansion bids possibly would be considered at the owners' summer meeting in Montreal June 1-10. Current NHL franchises are in Montreal, Boston, New York, Toronto, Detroit and Chicago.

The question of international competition came up when the Russian national team expressed interest in meeting NHL clubs during a tour of North America in December and January when they were undefeated against Canadian

Jets Blast Off In Vernon Tilt

VERNON (CP)—Spokane Jets of the Western International Hockey League exploded for six goals in the third period to overpower a Vernon intermediate team 6-4 in an exhibition game here Tuesday night.

Jim Moro and Gordie Turkik paced the Spokane attack with two goals apiece. Ed Doroboy, Joe Morneau, Brian Cruikshank and Charlie Goodwin each got one.

Vernon goals were scored by Merv Budoeki, Bob Gruber, Art Davidson and Alex Kashuba. The Vernon intermediates outshot Spokane 43-25 but standout goaltending by the Jets' Dave Cox spelled the difference. The Jets led 1-0 after the first period and held a 2-1 edge in the second.

Canadian Slodder Has High Hopes

MONTREAL (CP)—Canadians should be able to rule the bottled world for at least three more years, Paul Levesque of Montreal, a member of the Canadian team that competed last week in the world championships in Switzerland, said on arrival home Tuesday.

Levesque was No. 2 man on the second four-man bottled that finished 10th in the championships. He said Vic Emery of Montreal, pilot of the first Canadian team that won a decisive victory, is a superb driver and competitor who has "come into his own."

start of the cup semi-finals and for the opening of the 1965-66 season. The playoffs will start Thursday, April 1, continuing on Saturdays or Sundays, Tuesdays and Thursdays until the completion of the best-of-seven series.

Next season's schedule opens Oct. 21—two weeks later than before, in order to escape competition with World Series baseball and professional football, and ends April 10.

Comeuppance For Upstarts

LONDON (CP)—Two upstarts from the lower reaches of English soccer were knocked out by First Division clubs Tuesday in replays of their fourth-round matches in the Football Association Cup competition.

Reading, well down in the lower half of the Third Division, was beaten 1-0 at Burnley, while Hibernian United of the Second Division lost 3-0 at home to Wolverhampton Wanderers after surprisingly holding the Wolves to a draw on their own grounds last Saturday.

In a third replay between two First Division sides, Leeds United won 2-1 at Everton.

The survivor of Stoke City and Manchester United, also involved in a replay, will play host to Burnley in the fifth round. Wolverhampton will be at Aston Villa and Leeds will be at home to Shrewsbury Town, another Third Division side.

MEXICANS STUDY CANADIENS' STYLE

Hockey Moves Closer to Tropics

MONTREAL (CP)—Rolling fighting is to Mexicans what hockey is to Canadians and it never seemed likely the two would meet.

It's true that in recent years a couple of Canadian girls—Elizabeth Billon of Toronto and Carolyn Hayward of St. John's, Nfld.—have become bullfighters in Mexico.

But who would have thought the Mexicans, with their subtropical climate, would ever embrace hockey?

The game was introduced in Mexico City a few years ago by Canadians living there. And now it's played on two rinks by 17 teams—a five-team senior league and a 12-team junior circuit.

Having established a beach head, Mexico's organizers now are anxious to refine their game by learning from the experts. They settled on Montreal, Canada's National Hockey League.

Last fall, Jamie Roberts, secretary of the Mexico City Hockey Association, wrote to Canadians appealing for assistance.

Canadians invited him to Montreal where he spent several days observing the team in operation. And Montreal assigned Scott Bowman, coach of the junior Canadiens, to coach the Mexican players.

He is seeing all NHL Canadiens during home games and travels with them in Mexico City, at times in the juniors in addition to working out with junior-age teams in the metropolitan area.

On his return home he will meet with his father's associates to plan the team's future.

"I'm going to tell them what I did here and what I learned and then I'm going to show my other players how to do the things I learned."

One thing Chacho won't be able to teach his mates: How to shovel snow. Since his arrival, Bowman's driveway has been kept clear of snow, thanks to show my other players to Chacho's energetic efforts.

Cuba Protests Baseball Ban

HAVANA (Reuters)—Cuba called on the international Olympic committee Tuesday to suspend the International Amateur Baseball Federation if it continues with the Bogota world series despite Colombia's refusal to grant visas to Cubans.

Such suspension would lead to proscription of baseball from the future Central American and Pan-American Games.

Cuba's call follows the federation's failure to answer its request to suspend Colombia, which was quoted here as justifying its refusal by saying Cuba is a Communist-run country.

The series is to begin Feb. 12.

Smokies Subdue Warriors 8-3

ROSSLAND (CP)—Trail Smoke Eaters climbed back into third place in the Western International Hockey League defeating Rossland Warriors 8-3 here Tuesday night before 544 fans.

Trail and Rossland battled through a 1-1 first period tie. Trail scored three unanswered goals in the second.

Don White and Norm Lazarson scored two goals each for Trail. Cal Hockley, Ernie Severs and Gerry Penner and Mel Unger got the others.

For Rossland it was Bill Martin, Ed Galamore and Gerry Godfrey.

Seth Martin made 36 saves for the Warriors and Bruno Fortin made 26 for Trail.

Ontario Leads Quebec Bonspiel

QUEBEC (CP)—Ontario led the field as 24 teams qualified for the playoffs for the Lieutenant-Governor's Trophy, the highest honor in the 1962-63 annual Quebec International Bonspiel.

Eleven of the 48 Ontario ranks that entered the week-long event on Monday made it to the quarter-finals in their section, automatically qualifying for the playdown which starts today.

Another skip from Ontario, Jimmy Guy of Kenora, is the favorite to take the competition, but he is playing with three men from Winnipeg and the team was registered under Manitoba.

Guy and his second, Charlie Williams, have played in the Canadian curling championships at least once.

BALTIMORE (CP)—At 37, Harry Piddling isn't quite ready to be put out to grass yet, but when the day comes he'll have the choice of a lawn mower or a set of golf clubs, depending on whether he wants to trim the turf or chop holes in it.

The gifts were presented to the Toronto-born centre of Baltimore Clippers Tuesday night to celebrate his 1,000th regular-season game in the American Hockey League.

Hydro-Electric Power Issue Discussed In 2 Legislatures

The Newfoundland legislature has been given a warning that hydro-electric power could make hydro-electric stations obsolete in the future, Premier Bennett would the future, knocking the proposed Hamilton Falls Power project in Labrador.

On the West Coast, however, the future held a less ominous outlook. A Liberal member of the British Columbia legislature extolled a deal which could result in free boat trips to Hawaii during the summer.

The two legislatures were in session Monday along with the Ontario House of Commons, fourth provincial legislature to have already started a new session, does not sit Mondays.

Conservative Opposition Leader James J. Greer in Newfoundland said a large American company has made an offer to supply nuclear power to Consolidated Edison of New York, to be one of the largest customers for Hamilton Falls power.

If the Hamilton Falls project is not begun soon, he warned, nuclear power would become cheap enough to compete with hydro-electric stations and make Hamilton Falls obsolete.

"Come Back To Classes" Quebec Teachers Urged

QUEBEC (CP) — Fourteen second day of "study sessions" force their salary dispute with suburban Roman Catholic which have closed schools in the school commissions by a 15,000 French-speaking students teachers' walkout demanded to on an unscheduled today. The teachers called the "study sessions" their way of work immediately. The demand came as some getting around the fact they 550 teachers headed into their can't legally strike—in a bid to

In Montreal, meanwhile, teachers involved in a similar dispute scheduled another meeting tonight to discuss the state of their negotiations. This group already has voted to call study sessions if necessary, but as yet has given no sign of actually leaving the classrooms.

More than 30,000 English- and French-speaking students would be affected by a school shutdown in the Montreal area.

A spokesman for the Quebec suburban commissions said they feel the use of "study sessions" violates a false impression created by the public by disguising an illegal act. These acts were prohibited by law, he said, and condemned by law.

War Criminal Handed 5 Years

FRANKFURT (AP) — A West-German war crimes court today sentenced Adolf Eichmann's top aide, Hermann Krumey, to five years at hard labor for complicity in the murder of at least 300,000 Hungarian Jews.

His co-defendant, Otto Hunsche, was found not guilty of the same charges.

After an often stormy trial that lasted more than nine months, Krumey was found guilty of participating in the 1944 deportation of 437,000 Hungarian Jews to the Auschwitz concentration camp where the majority of them were gassed. He was acquitted of a supplementary charge of extortion.

Krumey, 60, former SS (Nazi elite guard) lieutenant-colonel and Eichmann's deputy, once offered to trade the Western allies 1,000,000 Hungarian Jews in return for 10,000 trucks. His offer was rejected.

Negroes Chant Freedom, Freedom

SELMIA, Ala. (AP) — Negroes chanting "freedom, freedom" prompted new court action in their right-to-vote struggle and vowed to continue their protest marches today despite mass arrests.

With Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. still in jail, other leaders took command of the voter registration campaign and called for more volunteers to keep the street demonstrations going.

City police and sheriff's deputies arrested 503 Negroes Tuesday, most of them teen-agers, students who stayed out of school to join the growing protest. It brought to almost 1,200 the number taken into custody this week and raised the total to 1,600 since the campaign started 16 days ago.

WINTER STAYS SAY GROUNDHOGS

QUARRYVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Button up your overcoat and keep those long woolly hands—there are going to be six more weeks of winter.

That's the prediction of Pennsylvania's two famous furry forecasters who poked their weary heads from their cold holes on opposite ends of the state at daylight today, saw their shadows and, true to tradition, scooted right back in to enjoy the underground warmth until spring beckons.

If the two groundhogs—Punxsutawney Phil in the western part of the state and an unnamed groundhog in this eastern Pennsylvania community—ventured afield, it would have meant spring was soon to come.

There was no official comment from the United States weather bureau.

Centennial Project Recalls Japanese B.C. "Exodus"

Lethbridge's Centennial project is a Japanese Canadian, a tribute to the 2,000 Japanese uprooted from British Columbia and moved to southern Alberta by government order in the months after Japan bombed Pearl Harbor in December, 1941.

By ALLEN SACKMANN

Lethbridge, Alta. (CP) — Suspicious farmers met bitter Japanese on an April day 23 years ago with nothing more in common than the railway platform on which they stood.

In the anxious months after Pearl Harbor, when 2,800 Japanese were evacuated by government order from coastal British Columbia to southern Alberta, the Orientals were viewed only as a relief to the critical labor shortage on sugar beet farms.

Few could have imagined that in time mutual respect and understanding would replace the suspicion and bitterness. Japanese families were picked up by wagon or truck at the railway station and taken to makeshift homes that the farmers were obliged to provide.

"He (the farmer) was still cleaning the chicken coop when we arrived," says Stan Kanegawa, 44, of Vauxhall, now a prominent potato farmer. "When we said we wouldn't live among chicken lice, he let us stay in a shack abandoned by bachelor miners."

"I had never been bitten by bedbugs before. There was no water and the farmer led us to a pond. He told us that would do."

TRAVEL RESTRICTED

Mr. Kanegawa, his 55-year-old father, his mother and three other children all worked in beet fields — the hardest work his parents had known since coming to Canada in 1920.

were only two of the early difficulties. Suspicious and hostile communities passed bylaws prohibiting the Japanese from living in urban areas. They couldn't own firearms, and travel was restricted to a 40-mile radius of the farm on which they worked.

"It was hardest on the older people," says Taber dentist George Sakamoto, 15 when the family came to Alberta. "They were leaving their life's work, their homes and their friends. For us younger ones, we had to start some place and we didn't mind so much."

Mr. Kanegawa's father received $3,000 for a Vancouver boat-building business he valued at $25,000.

Tom Tsuchihata, 40-year-old Couderdale farmer, says his father received $800 for a 10-acre Fraser Valley farm he had bought 10 years earlier for $600, uncleared and unbroken.

Walter Koyanagi, assistant editor of the weekly Taber Times, had paid $2,000 for a grocery business, built up his stock and sold it for $1,000.

MOVED WITHOUT NOTICE

"I was lucky," he said, "I had a month's notice. Many people got less than 24 hours before they were moved."

"It was discrimination," says Mr. Koyanagi who was 21 when he moved. "The Japanese were singled out while the Italians and Germans were left alone."

It was the predominant feeling among the 21,500 Japanese ordered 100 miles inland from the west coast by the B.C. security commission. But to those who moved to southern Alberta, "It was a blessing in disguise."

"We didn't know it then, but it was one of the best things that could have happened in many respects," says Mr. Koyanagi.

Clarke Attends Health Course For Preventative Medicines

Forty medical officers were brought up to date on changes in the field of preventative medicine at the fourth continuing education course in Vancouver during January.

Dr. David A. Clarke, medical health officer in Kelowna, said the course was sponsored jointly by the UBC department of preventative medicine, and the Department of Health.

Fields covered included virology, pesticides and bacteriology.

Members attending were told metabolic disorders such as some forms of mental retardation, can now be detected in small children by means of screen tests," Dr. Clarke said.

"New tests are also available for detecting the RH problem earlier in mothers."

"During a cytology presentation, members were told of the reduction in invasive cancer due to the use of smear tests."

The B.C. cancer institute completed 100,000 tests in 1964, which represents one-third of the female population over 21. How to deal with these problems is the focus of the seminar tests are to detect cancer of the cervix. The rate drop was 30 per cent in a six-year period.

"Air pollution was another topic, with reference to its relationship to respiratory disease at the fourth continuing education course in Vancouver during January."

"Recent developments in cardiac open heart surgery were discussed. Doctors were told what can be done for very young children with congenital heart defects."

"The Hall report on medical services in Canada was another subject discussed. Doctors heard what services are available in Canada and what the gaps and needs are."

"There was felt to be a great need for more training facilities and medical teachers, and a gap existed in mental health services available."

Ten Companies Seek Action On Trans-Canada Pipeline Move

WASHINGTON (CP) — At least 10 companies have filed intervening intentions in an application by Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Limited to build another natural gas supply line from Western Canada to Eastern Canada via the United States.

The federal power commission here said today the deadline for interventions—which do not necessarily mean opposition—was Monday afternoon. The commission will set a date for a formal hearing.

Two interventions came from Canadian Gas Distributing Companies, both Ontario customers of Trans-Canada. They are Consumers Gas Company, Toronto, and Union Gas Company of Canada Limited, Windsor.
